How to utilise Rhythm2Recovery Material Legally & Respectfully

‘Rhythm2Recovery’ and the R2R logo above are Registered Trademarks ® in Australia, Canada, the USA, UK and EU.

Written material, including all Rhythm2Recovery books, program manuals, and website material are copyright protected ©

Rhythm2Recovery is committed to encouraging use of their therapeutic material to support people with social and emotional development. We are happy for people to adapt our work as required to meet the needs of those they are supporting. Equally we wish to encourage the use of this material in ways that respect its integrity and do not undermine its reputation as an ethical, evidence-based model of practice.

As a result, the following guidelines for practitioners may be useful.

1. USE OF THE NAME RHYTHM2RECOVERY

Practitioners are free to use the name and logo to inform people, through marketing etc., that their work incorporates elements of our model. When doing so the trademark symbol should follow the name ‘Rhythm2Recovery’ ®

Programs that incorporate content of 75% or above of Rhythm2Recovery material, can be named a ‘Rhythm2Recovery’ ® Program. E.G: Courses based on one of our program manuals or derived from the training workbook.

The use of the name ‘Rhythm2Recovery’ for business names, in social media page titles, workshops, conferences etc. is not permitted, without express permission from the director – Simon Faulkner.

2. TEACHING/INFORMING OTHERS ABOUT RHYTHM2RECOVERY

Practitioners who have completed a Rhythm2Recovery training workshop can give brief presentations to others in small public settings in order to showcase the value of this work.

These should be unpaid, limited to below 30 people and limited to two presentations annually. Rhythm2Recovery, upon request, will provide templates for brief presentations in support of these opportunities.

The delivery of presentations to larger audiences, any paid presentation, or teaching and training in the use of the Rhythm2Recovery model and materials is prohibited, unless by explicit permission from the director – Simon Faulkner.

3. PRINTING, COPYING, TRANSLATING RHYTHM2RECOVERY MATERIALS

Practitioners can utilise Rhythm2Recovery content from the Rhythm2Recovery website or other promotional material to explain the Rhythm2Recovery model, evidence-base and testimonials supporting it. This content can be used for publicity and promotion on brochures, websites and social media, but should not be adapted or altered from the wording used in the original.

Copying, printing, translating and sharing of Rhythm2Recovery copyrighted materials is otherwise not authorised without the express permission of the director – Simon Faulkner

For additional permissions please contact Simon Faulkner @ simon@rhythm2recovery.com
